

A COMPELLING COMBINATION

Linde plc Amends Exchange Offer Minimum Acceptance Condition

Guildford, U.K. (October 23, 2017) – Linde plc today announced that it has decided to lower the minimum acceptance ratio of the exchange offer for all ordinary shares of Linde AG (XETRA: LIN) from 75% to 60% of all Linde AG shares entitled to voting rights, following the consent by both Linde AG and Praxair, Inc. Linde plc intends to publish the respective amendment to the exchange offer document, which had initially been published on August 15, 2017, during the course of today, inter alia, on the Internet at www.lindepraxairmerger.com and file such amendment with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (“SEC”). Due to such amendment of the exchange offer, the acceptance period of the exchange offer, which was originally scheduled to expire on October 24, 2017 at 24:00 hours (CEST), will be extended by two weeks and will now expire on November 7, 2017 at 24:00 hours (CET).

Thus, the lowered minimum acceptance ratio has to be reached by November 7, 2017 at 24:00 hours (CET). Otherwise, the business combination between Linde AG and Praxair, Inc. (NYSE: PX) will be terminated and there will be no additional acceptance period.

The decision to reduce the minimum acceptance ratio has been taken in particular to allow certain shareholders who are restricted from tendering at an earlier stage to be included in the exchange offer. This is especially true for index funds which are regularly not permitted to tender their Linde AG shares before the respective index is adjusted to the tendered share line in the context of the exchange offer. Such adjustment typically occurs only when the minimum acceptance threshold has been reached or if specific conditions for each relevant index have been met. The reduction of the minimum acceptance threshold to 60% is intended to address this issue and to permit the applicable index funds to tender their shares during the extended acceptance period (or the two-week additional acceptance period which follows the extended acceptance period if the lowered minimum acceptance ratio has been met).

If the reduced minimum acceptance threshold is not met by November 7, 2017 at 24:00 hours (CET), the business combination between Linde AG and Praxair, Inc. (NYSE: PX) will be terminated and there will be no additional acceptance period. Accordingly, Linde shareholders should not rely on the possibility of accepting the exchange offer during the additional acceptance period.

The business combination remains subject to the satisfaction or waiver of closing conditions, including the reduced minimum acceptance threshold of 60% and the receipt of all regulatory approvals. We have confidence in reaching an acceptance level of 75% or more at the end of the exchange offer process, which is required for the success of the transaction as it avoids an adverse tax event, as described in the offer document and the amendment to the offer document. The parties continue to expect that the business combination will be completed in the second half of 2018.
